Candidates For Governor Hurl Red Hot Bolts

Friend Richardson Hits at Young and Rex Goodcell Raps Richardson

methods or otherwise, extract a single "favor" from the governor. There have not been even a few "forums" from the table. Consequently the command from New York "BEAT RICHARDSON" is music to their ears.

In L. A. Too
"Similar orders from New York have been received at Los Angeles, where the Hearst newspapers are hand-in-glove with the politicians who 'run' the southern metropolis. In both cities the gubernatorial battle will be waged to the practical exclusion of all other contestants—from the United States senatorship right down the line. In this campaign the BIG prize is the governorship and control of the state government, and the only way to win the prize is to 'BEAT RICHARDSON!' The governor stands right smack-dab in the middle of the road and, since he pugnaciously refuses to get out of the way, Mr. Hearst has ordered his California lieutenants to run their steam roller right smack-dab over him—if they can."

Young Hits Governor
Lieut. Gov. C. C. Young's publicity this week follows:

"LOS ANGELES.—Any attempt on the part of power interests or the present state administration to keep the Boulder Dam and All-American Canal project from remaining the most vital economic and political question ever confronting California will be opposed by Lieut. Gov. C. C. Young, according to his declaration here today to 43 Southern California editors and publishers.

"The occasion of Mr. Young's announcement to force enemies of the Colorado River development plan that has won the support of the national administration at Washington, was a non-partisan editorial luncheon meeting at which he was the speaker.

Addresses Editors
"Speaking before the southern editors, Mr. Young said, in part: 'From this time forward I propose at every opportunity and upon every occasion to force the attention of all California upon the Boulder Dam and the All-American Canal project as authorized by the pending Swing-Johnson bill. It is the most important economic possibility that ever has been offered to California.

"It is so vitally essential to California, and especially to Southern California, that I do not propose to have it vaguely dismissed with vague generalities. 'So important to the accomplishment and success of this great project is support and advocacy, rather than hostility, from the state administration, that I propose to keep the subject of this approved Colorado River development plan and its related project of a metropolitan water district to bring domestic water to Southern California cities before forward-looking California.

"I propose to lay before the people the record of indifference and hostility to these projects of the Richardson administration. I propose to discuss fully the affiliations of this administration as they affect its attitude upon this issue; I propose to analyze and discuss any belated attempt by vague generalities or by bold campaign assertions to cover up a recalculation which, when it is once known, will bring down upon this administration the just wrath of a people who are insistent that their interests in this great development be guarded and advanced.

Slaps "Economy"
"I do not propose that this campaign shall be a repetition of that of four years ago, when our present governor promised the people he would save $115,000,000 and reduce taxes accordingly, and upon being elected upon the strength of these bold assertions proceeded to spend $12,000,000 more than did the preceding administration—more, in fact, in four years than was spent in the preceding eight years. 'Nor do I propose that the people be deceived or misled by any spurious claims to credit because of a surplus in the treasury, when as a matter of fact nearly two-thirds of this surplus came from and is directly attributable to the preceding administration.

"During four long years the little group of men representing cities and irrigation districts have been carrying on the fight for the Boulder Canyon project in the face of indifference and hostility from the Richardson administration and its sponsors. 'Fortunate indeed has it been for Southern California that there were those who, with fine courage, did fight the good fight for this great essential development, while the state administration was conspicuously silent or unfriendly. Says He's Ashamed
"To me it has always been a shame and disgrace that while Colorado and Utah, Wyoming and New Mexico, Nevada, and Arizona considered the development of the Colorado River of such importance that their governors or other high state officials were ever actively representing them at Washington, California alone, as a state, was unrepresented, was officially silent and unconcerned save for an occasional act of hostility.

"I am proud to have in this campaign the support of those who have led in the fight for the Boulder Dam and All-American Canal development as authorized in the Swing-Johnson bill. I am no less proud that the main opponents of this great constructive measure are bitterly opposed to me and unthusiastically for the re-election of our present governor."

Mr. Goodcell Attacks
Mr. Rex Goodcell, former collector of internal revenue, launched a double-barreled attack on Young as Hearst's pet, and on Richardson as one who "had deceived the people."

Mr. Goodcell's latest publicity contribution follows:
"A scorching expose of the influences and interests behind the candidacies of his two major opponents in the gubernatorial contest now pending in this state was broadcast by Judge Rex B. Goodcell in his address Sunday at the old-time barbecue staged by the Chamber of Commerce of San Juan Capistrano near that thriving community.

"Goodcell did not mince words in declaring that Mr. Young, though a part of the state government for more than eighteen years, had not lifted his finger to correct the evils of which he complains. He charged that Young is the candidate of William Randolph Hearst of New York, who seeks through his string of Democratic newspapers to dominate the political life of California and set up John Francis Neelan as the political boss of the state. That the crowd which is backing the iniquitous so-called water and power act, which would saddle a half-billion-dollar bond issue on the state, is also backing Young, was also charged by Goodcell.

Hits Governor
"As to the present governor, Goodcell asserted Richardson has deceived the people as to the real financial status of the state; that the apparent treasury surplus is but impounded funds recently released by the court decision on the King tax bill, and money appropriated by the legislature for improvements and purposely held up to show a treasury surplus. That the Railroad Commission appointed by Richardson is the mouthpiece of the railroad corporations of the state was charged by Goodcell, who asserted that these self-same interests are supporting him for the purpose of perpetuating his misrule for another four years."

Sam Levy Buys Big Shoe Stock; Putting on Sale

Sam Levy, in conjunction with three other shoe dealers, has purchased the entire stock of footwear of a well known Los Angeles shoe store, according to an announcement made by Mr. Levy this morning.

Mr. Levy's share of the purchase, totaling over two thousand dollars, has been shipped to Torrance and will be sold at less than wholesale.

"This event is not to be confused with the ordinary sale of bankrupt stocks," said Mr. Levy, "as the store whose stock we bought has always enjoyed a reputation for handling high grade footwear and the stock at this time is particularly clean. The styles are new and the footwear is of exceptional quality. We do not hesitate to guarantee these shoes the same as our regular stock," continued Mr. Levy.

"That we are able to sell these shoes at less than wholesale is due to the fact that we bought them at a very great sacrifice to the original purchaser," Mr. Levy stated, "and we are glad that we can share our good fortune with our customers."

Prices and complete data on the purchase are given in the Sam Levy advertisement on the back page of this issue.

Miss Adella Morgan, a frequent house guest of Mrs. Nana K. Wood of Cota avenue, writes from Honolulu that she is having an enjoyable trip and plans to visit Japan before returning to California.
